Read more about Eye Care Software at This is a program that was conceived to help users take care of their eyesight. As it was made for such a broad audience, the installation process is easy to get through and doesn't involve anything complicated. Upon installing, the program offers a simple, no-nonsense interface, whereby users can schedule breaks to best fit their schedule. Breaks can be as long as you want, but they can only be taken in 10-minute increments: every 5, 15, 25, 35 minutes, and so on. Users can choose the program to play an audio file during break time. It comes bundled with a few audio files to play, but you can pick anything from your collection. The break screen The way the app signals you to take a break is clever. After work time is up, the program will lock your screen, displaying the break's remaining time. This cannot be overridden, unless the user restarts their machine. The screen also urges users to take short, frequent breaks, rather than longer and less frequent ones, as they are reportedly better for their eyesight. After the time elapses, the user can

Eye Care Software is a simple, no-nonsense, and user-friendly program that was designed to help users take proper care of their eyes. It's one that should be simple for anyone to understand, regardless of their computer experience. Once it's installed, the program offers a clean interface where users can schedule breaks and then set the day of the week on which they will be taken. Breaks can be taken in 10-minute increments, and the schedule that has been set can be customized, allowing users to set the day of the week at whatever time they want. Upon installing, the program also allows users to pick the type of audio file they want to play during break time. It's not a very large program: it only requires a 2.97 MB download, which shouldn't be a problem for many people. This program is exactly what it claims to be: a program designed to remind people to take their breaks very seriously. Features: - Schedule breaks in 10-minute increments - Play an audio file during break time - Set the day of the week on which breaks will be taken - Customize the schedule to fit your schedule - Allow you to schedule breaks for any day of the week - Lock the screen after the break time elapses The presentation has a large file size of 7.69 MB and requires a download time of On July 1st, Bitcoin inventor and Casascius coins creator, Dr. Craig Wright, has gone into court in a dispute with a group of so-called Ira Malinka (Im-Malnack) that claims Wright stole their IP, and is demanding more than $1.1 million dollars in damages. In January of this year, Malinka filed suit against Wright in which he asserts claims of 1,201, which is the number of Bitcoins he claimed to have mined prior to 2011, based on his ownership of the Bitcoin patents he applied for. While Malinka says the patents were stolen by Wright, he later admitted that the IP he applied for was not the same as the IP he was awarded for and that he had no proof that Wright was the inventor of Bitcoin. According to the court papers, Malinka came up with the idea of a sound money in May of 2008, and began discussing it with Scott Nadig, who first made contact with Wright in September of 2009. Back then, Nadig had made more than 300,000 BTC for Wright and attempted to contact him to discuss more details about the Bitcoin network, but Wright rejected Nadig's attempts. In June
